To Whom It May Concern:

Re. Guy Hudson Water Diviner

We recently suffered a £1200 water bill on our business property and were informed that there was a water leak approximating one litre of water every three to four seconds. We are situated in a country park with a massive 50 acre lake. There terrain is varied and was originally marsh land. After isolating stop cocks for all buildings it became clear that the leak was not in any of the buildings but somewhere in the pipe work that traversed our three acres of land.

Not only did we have a problem of finding a leaky pipe, we also had to work out where the pipes actually lay. With five buildings and outhouses supplied with water and no idea which building was supplied first we had a very difficult task on our hand.

After some random digging we realised just how difficult our problem was, so we decided to contact a water diviner to see if we could at least work out where our pipes lay. Guy was extremely helpful. He was able to work out where our pipes lay despite some very challenging terrain. Not only that he identified the source of the leaks (it turned out there were two in completely different places), almost to the centimetre.

We were incredibly impressed and would recommend his service to anyone trying to resolve any water loss problem.

Yours Sincerely
